AND WERE CHARGED NOT WITH HIGH CRIMES, SUCH AS MURDER, AND ROBBERY, BUT WITH A FEW MINOR OFFENSES, SUCH AS TRESPASSING, THAT THEY HAVE NEVER BEEN TRIED OR PROVED GUILTY; THAT THEY HAD NEVER SHOWN A DISPOSITION TO BE UNFAIR OR TO ESCAPE; AND THAT, IF THEY HAD BEEN DISPOSED TO ESCAPE, THERE WERE ENOUGH ARMED GUARDS IN ATTENDANCE TO HAVE PREVENTED THEM FROM DOING SO.

THE TREATMENT TO WHICH THESE UNFORTUNATE PRISONERS WERE SUBJECTED ON THEIR ROUTE TO RALEIGH UNDER GUARD IS ILLUSTRATED BY AN INCIDENT OCCURRING AT CHARLOTTE.

As the party was passing from the Lincoln to the N. C. R. R. depot at Charlotte, they were grossly insulted by a large crowd of negroes that had assembled at the former depot. All kinds of jeers, taunts, and insulting epithets were showered upon them by the negroes, who seemed bent upon having a row. The white men anxious to avoid a difficulty, forbore taking any notice of them, and not until one of the negroes, knowing the son of Dr. Martineau, one of the government witnesses, was any demonstration of defense made. Mr. Martineau, seeing the language of his son, rushed to the front and, in a loud voice, ordered the negroes to get back. Several of the negroes, however, refused to obey, and one of them, a young man, stepped forward and, in a loud voice, ordered the white men to get back. The police, arriving on the spot, and aided by a sergeant of the United States service, who happened to be present, the disturbance was quickly suppressed.

DOUBT KEY.

Don Platt, a paper, the Capital, in a sketch of the Knight Templar excursion to Washington, (in which Hale, Ryland, Wardell and Allen, of this place, participated), gives the following incident:

The National Hotel has been mentioned over five hundred guests in a manner in the last degree creditable to the proprietor, Mr. Tenney.

Everything has been conducted in a commendable manner. But some mistakes will occur in the best regulated hotel, and one such occurred at the National the first night of the excursion. Two Western Templars were assigned adjacent rooms. One of them, a young man, was a member of the Knights Templar, and the other, a young man, was a member of the Knights Templar. The two young men, however, were not of the same order, and the young man of the Knights Templar, in a loud voice, ordered the young man of the other order to get back. The police, arriving on the spot, and aided by a sergeant of the United States service, who happened to be present, the disturbance was quickly suppressed.

THE OLD, OLD STORY.
